I Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow:

The game of football is one of the several team sports which involve picking and advancing a ball into a goal area to score a goal. There are two teams of eleven players each who have a clearly defined area in which to play the game. Each team scores goals by moving the ball to an opposing team's end of the field into a goal area. Goals are scored by players by putting the ball between two goal posts which is defined by the opposing team. Players move the ball by hitting with the head or kicking.

People all over the world have played games which required carrying a ball or kicking it since ancient times. But, it is noteworthy that most of the modern codes of football originated in England. The term football referred to many games played on foot in medieval Europe. In 1586, men from a ship commanded by an English explorer named John Davis went ashore to play a game of football with Inuit (Eskimo) people in Greenland. In the Medieval Ages, there was a huge rise in the popularity of football throughout Europe. Such form of football was called "mob football" and it would be played between neighboring towns and villages involving unlimited number of players in opposing teams. The popularity of the game has grown with the passage of time and the Soccer World Cup which is organised once in four years, is a global event.
