1. According to St.Augustine, “ The world is a book and those who don’t travel read only a page.” Travelling is man’s habitual behavior. He has been travelling since time immemorial to search for food, to satisfy his curiosity, to explore new lands and to enjoy himself.

2. Travelling offers tremendous opportunities for fun, adventure and discovery. It provides a welcome change of place and freedom from boredom and stress. It brings people of different cultures, religions and nations together and thus helps them understand each other’s customs, traditions, beliefs, heritage and lifestyles. This leads to greater international understanding, tolerance and world peace.

3. The greatest contribution of travel, however, is the economic prosperity it brings. It generates employment, promotes business, trade, art and industry, particularly transport and hospitality. It is a major source of income for many countries, including India.
