Thousands of years ago, people drew pictures on rocks to tell a story. They made colours by rubbing red and yellow earth with animal fat. Later, they learnt to write on the dried skins of cows and goats. The ancient Egyptians made a type of paper from a special plant called papyrus. The stem was cut into strips which were then soaked in water. They were pasted together and left to dry in the sun. The Chinese learnt how to make paper from plants and the bark of trees. They even used rags and soaked them into a pulp. Then, they put the pulp on special racks and pressed out all the water. Later, they laid out the sheets to dry them naturally under the sun's heat. Today, paper is made in huge paper mills. Wood is the main material used to make paper.

1. What did the people write on in the olden days?

2. Who were the first people to make paper from a plant?

3. Fill in the blanks.

Chinese used ______ and _____ to make paper.

Today, paper is made in huge _____.
