(Total Marks – 4)

There was once a boy who hardly had any toys or money but he was a very happy little boy. He said that what made him happy was doing things for others and it also gave him a nice feeling inside. However, no one really believed him. He spent all day helping others and looking after neglected animals. One day, he met a famous doctor who thought the boy's case was so strange that he decided to investigate him. So, with cameras and tubes, the doctor managed to record what was happening inside the boy. What he discovered was surprising. Each time the boy did something good, a thousand tiny angels gathered around the boy's heart and started tickling it. That explained the boy's happiness. But the doctor continued studying until he discovered that we all have our own thousand angels inside us. But we do very few good things, so the angels spend most of their time wandering about, bored. So, it was like this, the secret to happiness was discovered.
