Wild animals live in forests. They are not kept like pets. They do not live in our homes like cats and dogs. They do not live on farms like sheep, goats or cows. We may see many of these animals at a zoo or in a circus. They do not like living in the places. They prefer to live in their natural environment. There they are free and roam under the trees. They are able to find their own food. They even find safe places to stay. Wild animals do not need the help of people. Now people understand how to keep wild animals happy. Huge areas of land are left empty for the beautiful wild animals. These areas are called wildlife parks. Here animals feel happy and well protected. Hunters are not allowed to harm them. People may even go to see the animals in their natural habitat.
